Biodynamic Chemistry 2
Glen Atkinson

Biodynamic Chemistry

The chemical elements activity must be described by the energetic glossary

A further step similar to the ag course lemniscate is taken when we see RS story of chemistry based upon H,N,O,C

He describes a chemistry where the elements work into a more physical level of manifestation, through their roles as polarised charged particles.

Look for the three levels of activity for each of the elements.

Transition Elements

Look where the transition elements sit on the energetic gyroscope

The transition elements are most active as catalysts of biological processes

Because we move closer to life we take a lemniscate twist

The elemental order is read K, Ca, Zn, Cu

Observe what happens to the elements in their sequence of hardness and melting points.

The Trace Elements

The previous diagrams have been orientated for the northern hemisphere, facing south to the ecliptic . A zenith orientation and East is on the left hand side

Chemistry is electro magnetic and orientates off magnetic north.
East is on the right hand.

Lievegoed and the constellations can be cross referenced onto the gyroscope.

Observe how the elements are manifesting the planetary and constellational activities.

Metallic states

If we are to look in greater depth into the energetic organisation of manifest bodies we need to orientate the gyroscope upon the internal physical arm, rather than the world physical arm

This places Carbon C as the base of physical manifestation

The metallic states show a polarisation of the elements

Glenological Rosetta Stone

The order of the elements that arises from the internal physical body orientation conforms to Dr Steiners stories within the medical and agricultural lectures

Observe what this means for how the elements work.

Use a word from each planet, make a sentence, play with it with your imagination then make another one.

Glen's Medicine Wheel

Orientate the picture to Magnetic North.
A bottle of water can be placed on any spot to accumulate the energy of that spot.
This can be sprayed over the area of the 'pest',
or taken as a remedy.
